

"We love the undulating texture and tone of the white Zellige tiles, which add depth, dimension and warmth," says Kate of the 'Bianco' wall tiles. These are contrasted with concrete quarter triangle tiles in Blue/Black and concrete hexagonal tiles in Charcoal, all from KWD & Co.

Out of the blue

Traditional yet fresh, this Mornington Peninsula bathroom blends varied hardware with seamless finesse. Kate Walker Design drew on mixed finishes to gracefully balance farmhouse and contemporary aesthetics. Even though handles and lighting differ in materiality, their forms and styles are united, adding a serene cohesion to the space. Brodware 'City Plus' tapware in Weathered Brass is gorgeously complemented by the Bryant Sconce lights in Bronze with White Glass Shade from The Montauk Lighting Co, while Hepburn Hardware 'Sydney' handles and 'Halifax' knobs in Carbon Black add contrast. "Our clients adored blue," says Kate Walker. "We added a sophisticated deep blue. We didn't want the home to feel coastal, so we paired it back with charcoal tones." >
